

Curious Broadcast Press Release
Red line Readings featuring Sean Moncrieff
Broadcasting on Dublin South June 1st at 1pm

Curious Broadcast is delighted to announce that Red Line Readings will broadcast on Saturday June 1st on Dublin South 93.9FM at 1pm. This Red Line Reading programme will feature Dermot Bolger in conversation with Sean Moncrieff who will read from his recently published novel The Angel of the Streetlamps.

Red Line Readings is in partnership with South Dublin Libraries' Red Line Book Festival. Red Line Readings was made with the support of the Broadcasting Authority of Ireland.

Seán Moncrieff is the author of three novels, Dublin, The History of Things and The Angel of the Streetlamps. Outside of fiction, he is well known for hosting his own popular daytime radio show, Moncrieff, on Newstalk 106-108 FM and for presenting numerous television shows such as The End, Good Grief Moncrieff, Black Box and Don't Feed the Gondolas. He is also the author of God: A User's Guide. His first novel, 'Dublin', was published in 2001 by Doubleday and reached the Irish bestseller lists. This was followed by the nonfiction titles 'Stark Raving Rulers: twenty minor despots of the twenty-first century' (2004), 'God: a User's Guide' (2006) and a second novel 'The History of Things' (2007). Sean's latest novel, 'Angel of the Streetlamps', is published by New Island.

patricia@curiousbroadcast.com

Photograph of Sean Moncrieff by Rob O'Connor

CURI BROADCAST
OUS.

Sean Moncrieff photograph by Rob O'Connor